

Camp Alphie
Parents' Camp Application

While the doctors heal and the counselors help the families understand cancer, there is a need to know how others find normalcy in family life and cope as they journey through this crisis. This is why the Board of Directors felt it would help the whole family if we provided a retreat of fun and relaxation where the parents of children in their various stages of healing could share experiences. It is very informal and totally free of charge; however, we do have several requirements:

- It is only for parents; no other relatives or friends.
- We feel that it is necessary to check in and remain through the entire camp program to receive the full benefits. While there are some exceptions, we review them individually.
- The Camp Admissions policy is to accept one sibling per camper, but we have made exceptions in order for parents to attend Parents' Camp.

The 2010 camp will be held at The Adaberry Inn, in Amarillo. This is a completely non-smoking bed & breakfast. Smoking rooms are not available.

While many of our parents have attended several parent camps, we still feel their presence is a big part of sharing experiences for our new parents. We look forward to seeing our returning parent campers as well as new faces!

You will receive a welcome letter closer to camp. You will be informed of the Parents' Camp packing list and other pertinent information.
